NĀGĀLAND – A LAND OF FOLKLORE

Nāgāland was declared as the Sixteenth State of India on 1st December 1963. The state is surrounded by Arunāchal Pradesh, Assam, Manipur and Myanmar. Its population is around 2 million as per census of 2011.

People of Nāgāland are of Indo-Mongoloid stock, whose ancestors have been living by nature and mutual love. There are 16 main tribes but there is no common dialect, rather 60 different dialects. English is the official language of the state.

Dimapur is the only airport in Nāgāland and is connected by air to Delhi, Kolkata and rest of the country. The state's main railhead is also at Dimapur.

Agriculture provides 90 percent of the people with their livelihood. The Forests which cover 90 percent area of Nāgāland, are its most important source of income. There are varied mineral reserves, including oil deposits, but almost no exploration. There are sugar mill, paper mill, fruit juice factory and plywood factory in Dimapur. Handloom and Handicrafts remain important.

Nāgāland is famous for its lush green environment and scenic beauty. It has a rich tradition which has been handed down the generations. It is called a land of music and song. The Hornbill festival is the annual festival of Nāgāland. The state is a rich fashion centre of North East producing fabrics that present the ancestral motifs blended with modern appeal.

This is a land that presents unimaginable beauty, moulded perfectly for a breathtaking experience. The geographical area of Nāgāland is 16,576 sq km.
