TRIPURA – An Introduction

Tripura is an attractive tourist destination with rich flora, fauna and spectacular sights that provide visual delight. The state has a rich cultural heritage. There is also great potential for development of tourist circuits, involving all the NE states and Bangladesh as well. All these offer attractive opportunities for the growth and development of Hospitality Industry.

Endowed with rich variety of tourist attractions, Tripura offers vast potential for growth in this sector. With an area of 10,491.69 Sq. Km. Tripura is one of the smallest states in the country. This ancient state with its natural beauty of lustrous green valleys and the hill ranges covered with varied flora and fauna, the fascinating blend of culture, glorious history and traditional art and craft is in a highly advantageous position for development of tourism. For convenience of tourists the state has been divided into two tourist circuits. One is south-west Tripura circuit covering the tourist destinations of west and south Tripura Districts and the other tourist circuit is north-west Tripura circuit covering the tourist destinations of north Tripura and Dhalai District. The entire state is having huge potential in tourism, specially eco-tourism, religious tourism, heritage tourism, hill tourism, rural tourism etc.

Tripura has already emerged as a major tourist destination with concomitant and positive effect on its economy as the number of domestic as well as foreign tourists pouring in to the state has been steadily growing. Even though the revenue yield from tourism sector to the state coffers in Tripura is not yet as high as it is in tourism-centric states like Goa and Himachal Pradesh, the overall growth of this sector has been impressive over the past decade with promises for more in the coming years. In line with the policies of the Government of India the tourism sector is attached great importance by the state government as an independent industry. In the year 2009 the state government launched the Tripura Tourism Development Corporation (TTDC) to unshackle this crucial sector from bureaucratic paraphernalia as well as to further stimulate growth.

UNAKOTI

Unakoti is a 'Shaiba' (Salvite) pilgrimage site dating back to the 7th-9th centuries. It features remarkable rock carvings, murals with their primitive beauty and waterfalls. Unakoti means one less than a crore and it is said that these many rock cut carvings are available here. According to Hindu mythology, Lord Shiva cursed gods and goddesses to turn into images when they failed to wake up before sunrise, which resulted in "one less than a crore" stone images and carvings at Unakoti. The site includes rock-carved figures and also stone images, with the notable ones being the central Shiva head ("Unakotiswara Kal Bhairava"), gigantic Ganesha figures, and Nandi Bull images. There are various other stone as well as rock cut images at Unakoti. An annual fair called "Ashokastami Mela" is held in April, attracting thousands of pilgrims.
